The first Lake View Hospital at the present site was first established in 1894, and began accepting patients in 1896. The original building was of only one building. The south wing (still in use), known as the Minta Harrison Wing was built in 1915 as a memorial from the publisher of the Commercial News.

The Title Page of this book shows the original hospital, then known as The Vermilion County Protestant Hospital. It was used initially in 1892 and was located on Fairchild street across from the present Danville High School. Prior to this time it was the McCrone residence.

This picture shows a hallway as seen in the original hospital as pictured above. The elevator on the left was bought by proceeds from a benefit ball in 1904. Prior to the installation of the elevator, patients had to be carried up the many flights of stairs.

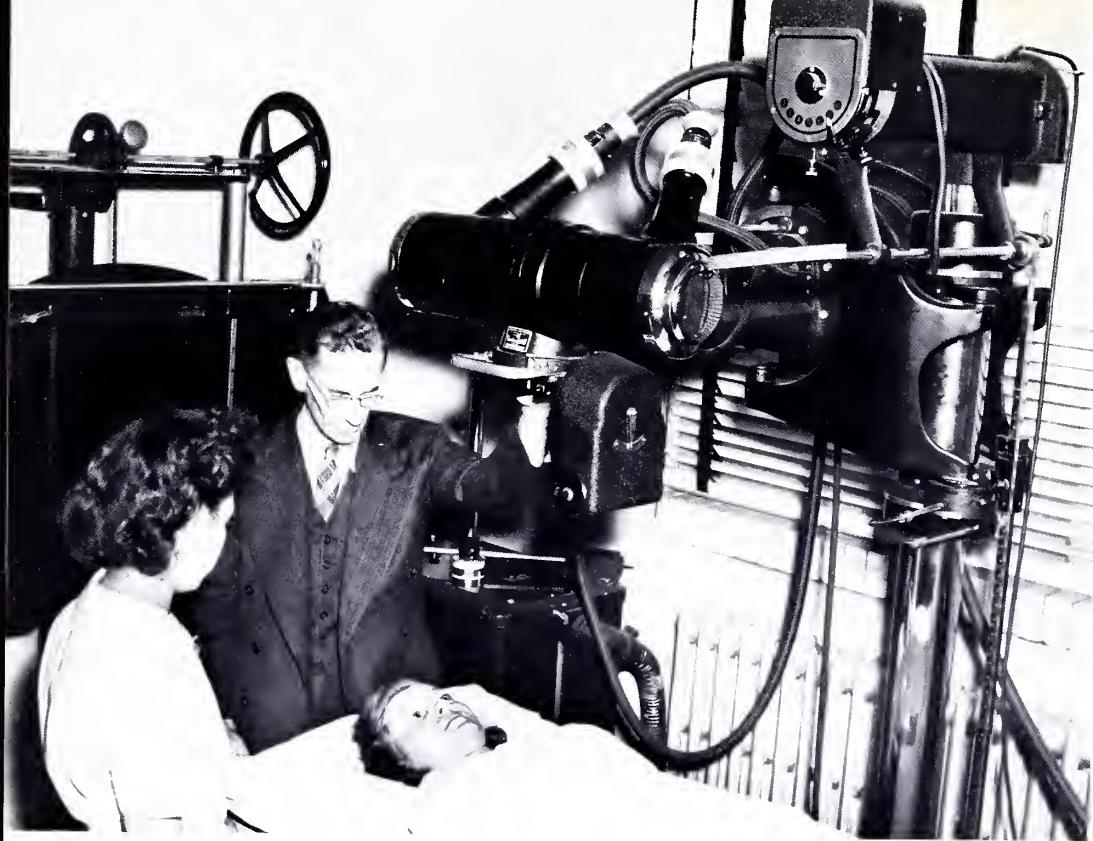

This was the old surgical unit of the original hospital as shown in the picture on the opposite page. Later student nurses used this room to assume their responsibility of packaging bandages and gloves for use in surgery.

The Revolutionary Spirit Of Health Care

This picture, taken in 1912, was the home of Student Nurses while receiving training at Lake View. It stood at the present site of the School of Nursing annex.

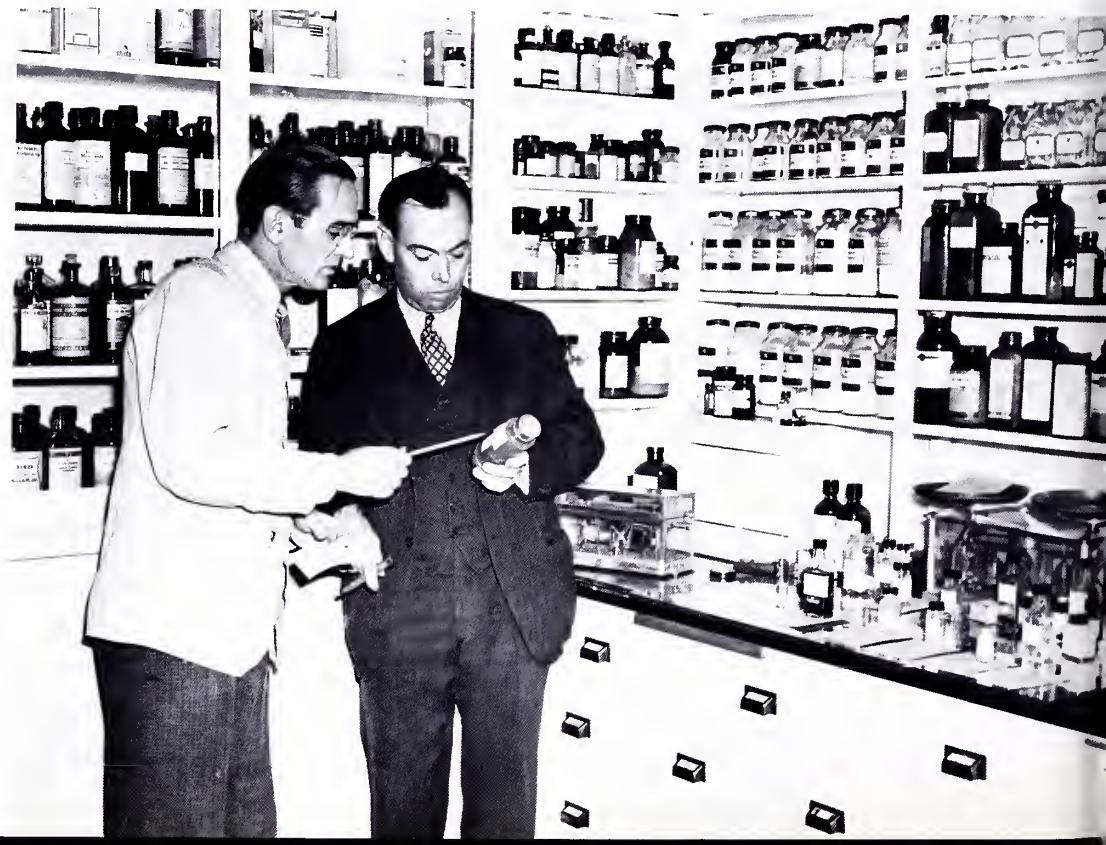

Or Warden demonstrates some new equipment in the x-ray Dept. during the 1930's.

In addition to more recent changes in building structures at LVMH, specific departments have acquired more modern and adequate equipment which is essential for today's health care.

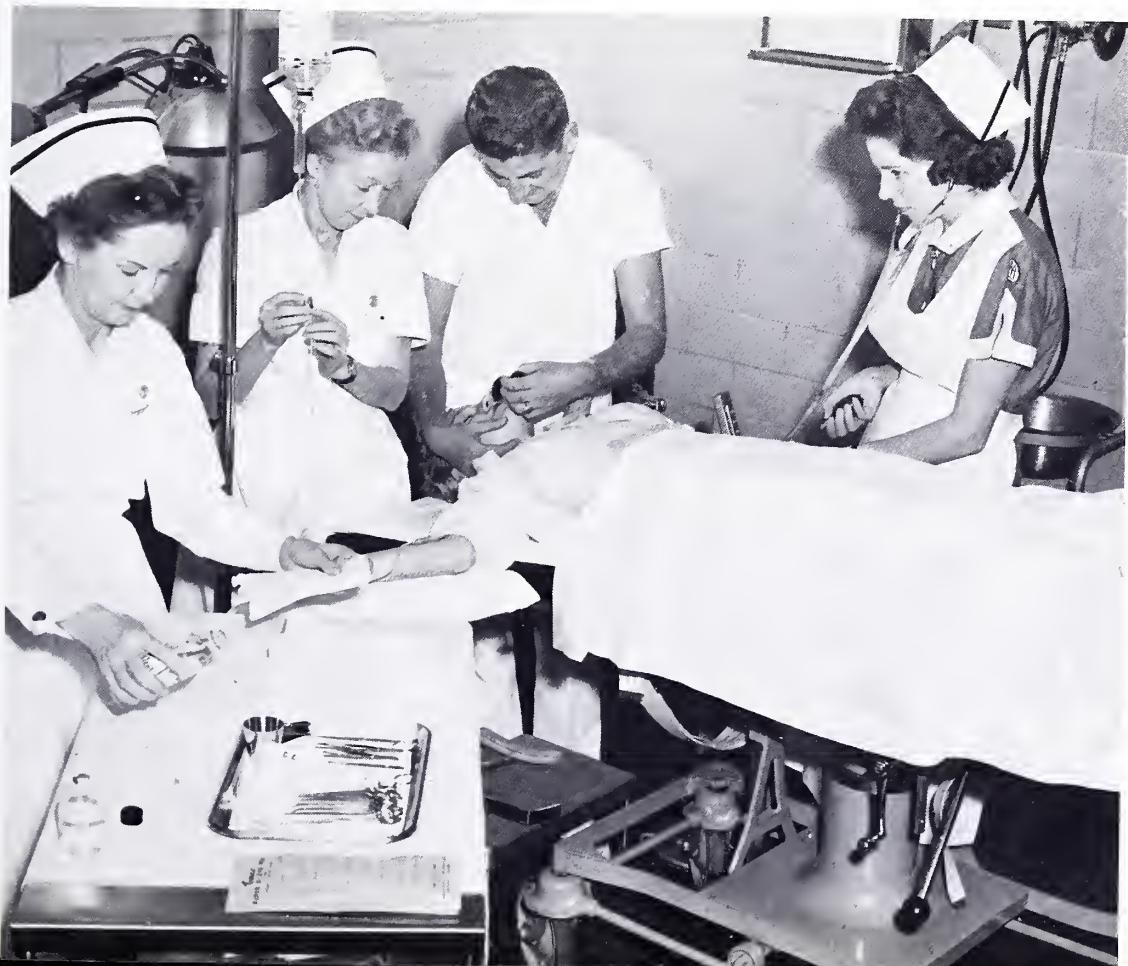

LeRoy Gall, Pharmacist talks with Dr. A. R. Brandenburger about medications.

Two surgical nurses draw blood for an indirect blood transfusion. This surgical unit was located at the site of the present renal dialysis unit on fourth floor of the Minta Harrison wing.

Even in 1958 Student Nurses were still found at the bedside of patients! Pictured are M. Bury, D. Bowen, E. Burmeister, M. Butke, P. Rich, J. Curry, L. Hetherington, and D. Clyden.

Student nurses have always been one of a kind, right Miss J. Goodrick? (1962)

What Is A Student Nurse?

Student nurses are found everywhere--underneath, on top, running around, jumping over or slithering past patient's beds. Doctors yell at them, head nurses criticize them, interns tolerate them, residents overlook them, mothers worry about them, and patients love them.

A student nurse is a composite. She eats like a team of hungry interns, and works like the whole nursing staff put together. She has the speed of a gazelle, the strength of an ox, the quickness of a cat, the endurance of a flagpole sitter, the abilities of Florence Nightengale, Linda Richards and Clara Barton all rolled into one.

To the head nurse, she has the stability of mush, the fleetness of a snail, the mentality of a mule and is held together with starch, adhesive tape and strained nerves. To an alumnus, she will never work as hard, carry more trays, make more beds, or scrub on more cases than her predecessors.

A student nurse is a wonderful creature: you can criticize her but you can't discourage her. You can hurt her feelings but you can't make her quit. Might as well admit it, she is your personal representative of the hospital, your living symbol of faith and sympathetic care.

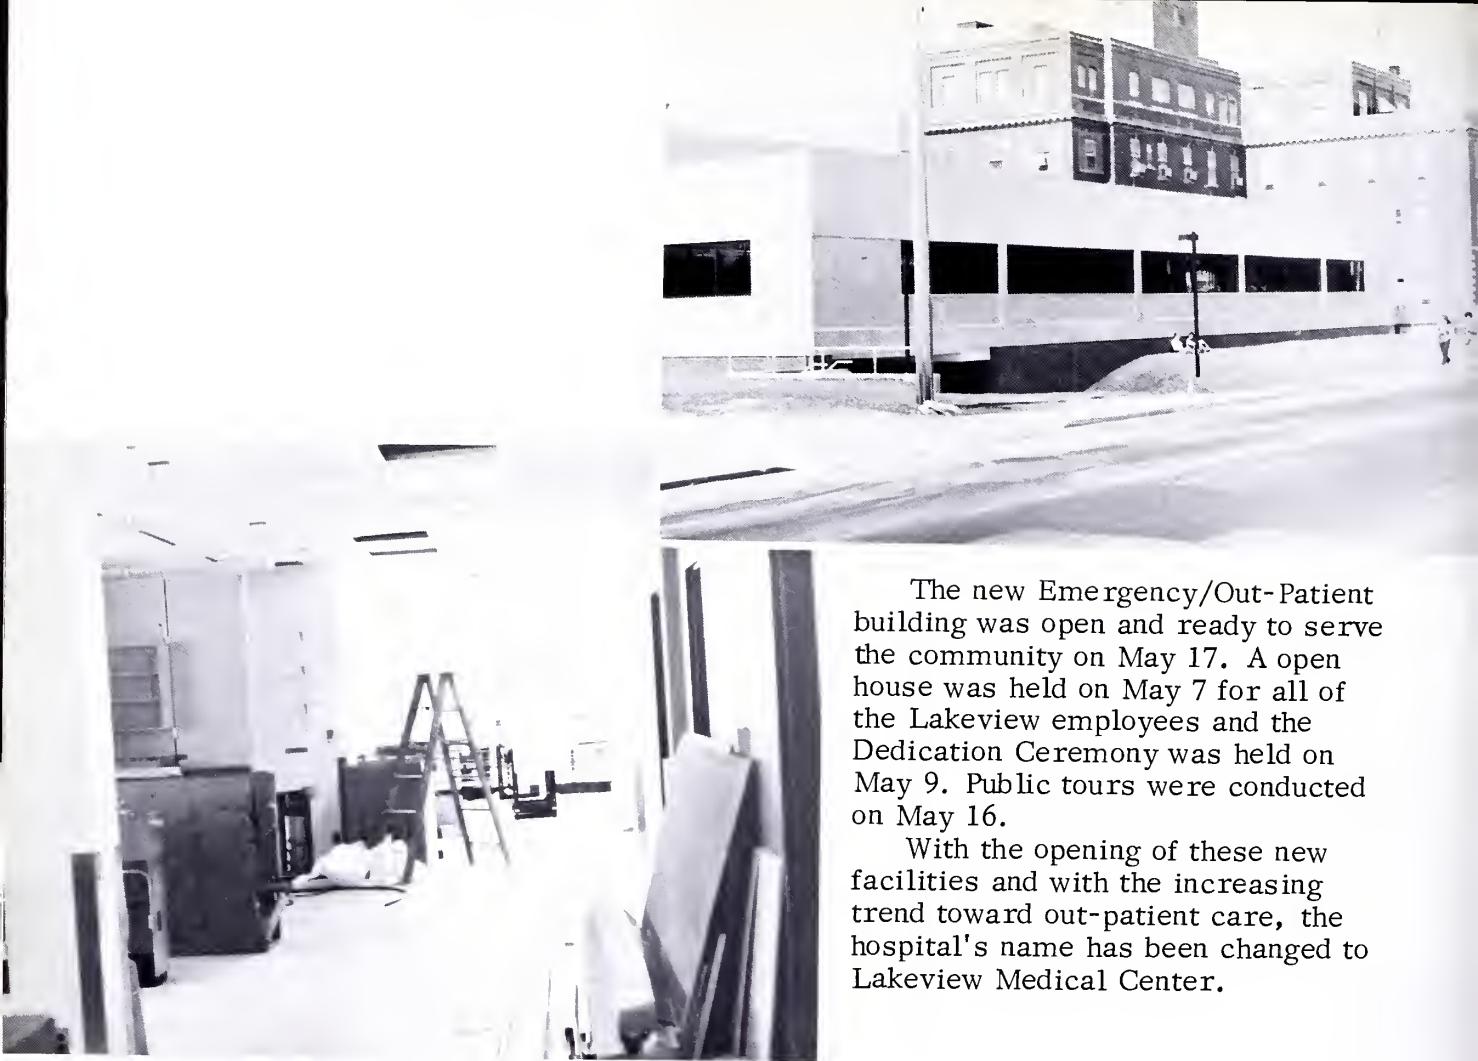

She may not be Elizabeth Taylor, but she is an example of the American way. She is judged not by her race, religion or social standing: She is measured by a professional yardstick that measures her ability to make a bed, apply a bandage, or sacrifice her time to ease the pain of a patient, simply for the satisfaction of a job well done. She is a hard working determined young girl doing her best for her school and hospital.

Whenever she becomes discouraged or the lamp gets heavy, she should remember that there is a reward for her, because surely some of God's angels wear white caps instead of halos and carry medicine trays instead of harps.

The New Emergency Out-Patient Dept At LMC

"The concept of the community hospital is changing, not only in Danville, but nationally, from the traditional role of an in-patient facility to the health care center of the community."--

Pediatrics is a fun place to work. For one thing, the patients are smaller than the nurse, for once! The senior class so enjoyed their experiences in Pediatric Nursing that many of them have decided to work there after graduation.

Students at LVMH gain experience at both LakeView and at St. Elizabeth hospitals. This helps us to learn more about children in addition to gaining experience at more than one hospital.

Yes, even though we have ripped off our caps lots of times and often gone home with cough syrup on our uniforms, we still enjoy our Pediatric Nursing experiences.

1976

S. N. A. I. became very active on both district and state levels as the school year progressed. Students from Lake View and Olney Central College participated. District meetings were held every other month in Marshall, IL., while each school had local meetings on the opposite months. In November, we welcomed our new district advisor, Mrs. Janet Bosworth (Bottom, Left), and bid farewell to Mrs. Ina Shipman state consultant (Top, Right). On the state level, we have been represented at all state board of directors meetings. Our members have participated in the planning of the 1976 state convention "Nursing -- Give a Damn!"

Students' families and alumni get together as school begins again.

Something is a little fishy...

The parade of dignified freshmen goes on!

And of course there's always plenty of food.

It may not be much, but it's all we've got.

Dr. Thangavelu entertains us all by showing us what's in the bag.

Student Nurses

*Vs.
Doctors*

OUR RIVALS!!!

For the second consecutive year the student nurses have challenged the Doctors on the staff at Lake View to a baseball game. As like last year, there were many interesting and unusual events that occurred -- even a few casualties!

Although we don't really know who won, we do know that everyone who participated had fun and are looking forward to another game next year.

Student Nurses have such high character, Right Marta?

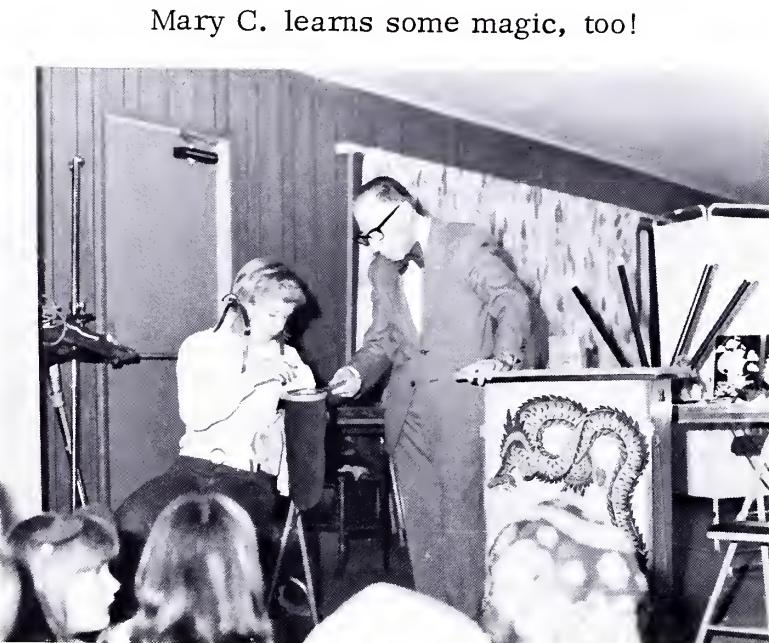

Ann I. helps a child prepare to play "Pin the tail on the Donkey".

Each year a Halloween Party is held for the students and their families. This year our special guest was Mr. Magic, a gentleman some of us met during our community health training.

It was a fun-filled evening for children and adults alike!

...and a special visitor from Hawaii.

Mary C. learns some magic, too!

The field of nursing includes all kinds of people!!

The witch of LVMH! (alias K. Butcher)

Halloween Party

Shame on you, Liz!

Even Mrs. Rick couldn't escape the mystical powers of Mr. Majic.

Phyllis Anderson Leads

We don't know if we helped to brighten the hearts of the patients, but the students sure had a good time as they caroled through the halls of the hospital, and to some nearby nursing homes and houses.

Afterwards, Mrs. Hozdic treated us to some good food and fun at her house -- even enough for the dog, right Elizabeth??

Chapel Services

Rev. Wm. Molloy was the speaker at the Thanksgiving service (Above), and Rev. Henwood led the Christmas service (Lower Right).

As student chaplain, Phyllis attempts to help fill the spiritual needs of the students as well as the patients.

Santa

As is customary, the students presented a Christmas program at the First Presbyterian Church in Danville on December 12, 1975.

"The Night Before Christmas" was pantomimed by the senior class, complete with sugar plums and reindeer.

The evening was concluded by a visit from Santa and his helper (Steve Stabler and Kelly Kurrelmier).

FIRST NATIONAL BANK
of Danville

The time has come to say good-bye,
Even though it was just yesterday
That we said hello.
And as the buses come to take us
Into different worlds,
We wonder
How long it will be 'til we see
These familiar faces again?
A few months,
A few years,
Maybe never ...
Friendships are destined to last
Forever ..., never die,
And the power of the pen is strong,
So the word to say is not good-bye ...
But 'til we meet again.
The power of the mind is strong too,
For memories last long after everything else,
And as we look at each other for one last time ...
We realize that this is
Just another phase of our friendship ...
For if our ties remain close
Even while apart ...
We ... are truly friends.
